

Rutgers Climate Symposium 2018
Climate Change and Food Security
Busch Student Center | Piscataway, NJ
November 14, 2018

AGENDA

- 8:15 AM Check-In (Multipurpose Room)
Poster Session Set-up (International Lounge)
Light Breakfast (Fireside Lounge/Multipurpose Room)
- 9:00 AM Welcome and Keynote Address (Multipurpose Room)
- Welcome*
Robert Goodman, Executive Dean, Agriculture and Natural Resources
School of Environmental and Biological Sciences & New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station
- Ronald Ransome, Dean, Mathematics and Physical Sciences, School of Arts and Sciences
- Climate Change and Food Security Challenges: A Global Perspective*
Alessandro DePinto, International Food Policy Research Institute
- 10:15 AM Break
- 10:45 AM Climate Change and Food Security Plenary Panel (Multipurpose Room)
- Agricultural Sensitivity to Inter-Annual Climate Variability: Implications for Smallholder Farmers in India*
Pinki Mondal, University of Delaware
- The Potential for Climate Change to Create “Fish Wars” that Reduce Food Supplies*
Malin Pinsky, Rutgers University
- Agroecological Approaches to Climate Change Adaptation: A Case Study from Malawi*
Rachel Bezner-Kerr, Cornell University
- Promoting Food Security in a Changing Climate: Lessons from the Caribbean*
Kevon Rhiney, Rutgers University
- 12:30 PM Lunch (Fireside Lounge/Multipurpose Room)
- 1:00 PM Poster Session (International Lounge)
- 3:00 PM Adjourn

Rutgers Climate Symposium is made possible through the generous support of the Frank Sposato Memorial Endowment